Spring, 2012

DAVID BAIGI ELECTED PRESIDENT KY BOARD OF ARCHITECTS

Recently elected for his first term as President of the Board, Mr. Biagi is the son of the late architect Quintin Biagi. He graduated with a Bachelor of Architecture from the University of Kentucky, receiving the Dean's Award in 1982. He became a registered architect in the state of Kentucky with a NCARB certificate in 1985.

Returning to graduate school at The Ohio State University he received a Master of Architecture and the AIA Medal 1987. He proceeded to work in New York City for Peter Eisenman and then Charles Gwathmey. He returned to Kentucky to work with his father and brother, also an architect. In 1996, he was named to the once every ten year list of 40 under 40 at the Cooper Hewitt. His work has been published around the world most recently in the May 2011 issue of Architectural Record for his design for the Houses of Sagaponac. In addition, he was selected as a Guest Architect for the Centre-Pointe project Lexington, KY, by Studio Gang.

In 2003 he was appointed Director of the School of Architecture in the College of Design at the University of Kentucky. His research projects have received a NCARB prize in 2004, an ACSA Collaborative Practice Award in 2005 and a Commonwealth Collaborative Award in 2010.

He is married to Tricia Barry Biagi and has a daughter Sophia 10 and son Leo 8.

The Board also elected Dr. Peggy Sharon as Secretary and newly appointed Board member Mr. Tim Murphy as Treasurer.

INTERN DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM for architectural interns & supervisors IDP 2.0 Final Phase: 3 April 2012

In case you haven't been keeping up with the news from NCARB, know that the final phase of IDP 2.0 went into effect on 3 April 2012. Interns need to know and understand the changes. As an IDP supervisor, you need to be aware of the rule changes and how they impact your interns. You are an active participant in providing them experience that will prepare them for licensure.

For more information, the rules can be found in the Interns' IDP 2.0 Rollover Guide and at www.ncarb.org/idp2. Also, further info can be found on Page 2 of this Newsletter.

LEXINGTON ARCHITECT TIM MURPHY APPOINTED TO THE KENTUCKY BOARD

Governor Steve Beshear recently appointed Mr. Timothy A. Murphy, a Lexington architect, to the Board. Mr. Murphy is a Principal in Murphy + Graves Architects of Lexington, KY. Mr. Murphy has been recognized as an innovator in his field through numerous awards and has frequently spoken at national and regional conferences. A graduate of the University of Kentucky School of Architecture, Tim is also a Certified Interior Designer and a LEED accredited professional. Tim Murphy is registered in Kentucky, Tennessee, and Illinois. He is an active NCARB certificate holder and a member of the American Institute of Architects. He was appointed by current NCARB President Scott Veasey to serve on NCARB's Architect Registration Examination (ARE) Subcommittee on Building Design & Construction Systems. As noted elsewhere he was elected Treasurer for the Board. His term on the Board expires in September, 2014.

WHO MAY BE STYLED AS ARCHITECTS?

by Jill Lewis Smith

KRS 323.230 Who may be styled as architects. Only persons licensed under this chapter may be styled or known as architects in Kentucky, or use any words or letters or assume any titles or description tending to convey the impression that they are architects.

“What’s in a name? That which we call a rose by any other name would smell as sweet.” – Shakespeare, Romeo and Juliet (II, ii, 1-2) An architectural intern meeting with the Board recently asked “What should I call myself, I DO architecture?” The reason behind our statute which allows only one licensed in Kentucky to call themselves an Architect is the very core of the reason we have a statute, or license. The health, safety and welfare of the public is the only reason for our statute, and the most basic principle is the understanding that only someone licensed by Kentucky is qualified to practice Architecture here in Kentucky. Should someone misrepresent themselves or be misrepresented as an Architect, then the public is not protected.

So you work for an Architect, and / or you graduated from an Architecture program, you do far more than draft, you manage projects, make design decisions, meet with clients, manage other employees, what can you call yourself? This type of predicament many find themselves in, but just because they might smell as sweet as the rose Architect they work for, that doesn’t give them the ability to use the title “Architect”. Our law does not specify a title for these individuals, and many are called designer, draftsman, intern, co-op, project manager - all are acceptable titles. This individual could even be the president of an Architecture company. All are acceptable just as long as no one in the public is lead to believe this individual is actually an Architect. Also, and really a different portion of our law, this person, when performing architectural work, must be working under the supervision of a licensed Architect. Each project must have an “Architect of Record” and this person must be responsible for all architectural work on the project. By policy the Kentucky Board of Architects has allowed some individuals to use the term “Architectural” in one way only. They have allowed the use of “Architectural Intern” by individuals who are working through the Intern Development Program. This is a long-standing policy set by the Board of Architects; this is not set out specifically in our law. Any other use of the term Architect (including architectural) is prohibited by anyone without a license in the Commonwealth.

“OK, so I’m licensed in Indiana, Ohio, and Tennessee. Why can’t I call myself an Architect in Kentucky?” The law in Kentucky is very clear, until you are licensed here in Kentucky as well, you are not an Architect here, and can’t imply to the public that you are. Even the use of the letters A.I.A., or R.A., or NCARB are not permitted, because they imply the same.

So I have a web-site, the world wide web, how do I stay out of trouble? By policy the Kentucky Board of Architects has determined that if you have an address on your web-site that is in the Commonwealth of Kentucky, then you must clarify where you are licensed. If you simply call yourself an Architect, or use letters to give the impression that you are an Architect then the law is clear, you must be licensed in the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

“Alright, my office isn’t in Kentucky, but I fully intend to get my license just as soon as I pick up a job in Kentucky.” This is also directly against our law. In order to solicit work as an Architect here in the Commonwealth you must first be licensed here in Kentucky. That is, since the practice of architecture is defined to include “offering to provide services,” the mere solicitation of work is prohibited unless you are licensed here.

Until you are licensed here, some names commonly used that the Kentucky Board of Architects does NOT allow are graduate architect, project architect, architectural designer, architectural draftsman, intern architect, architect in training. Also, the term “architectural” to describe the type of work you perform, or that you’ve “architected” something is strictly prohibited unless you are an Architect. Simply put, do not use any version of the word “architect” to describe yourself, your work, or in your title unless you are licensed to practice architecture here in Kentucky.

NCARB Releases Tools and Resources to Assist Interns With the Rollover to IDP 2.0

The National Council of Architectural Registration Boards (NCARB) has recently released several tools and resources that interns can use to prepare for the rollover to the Intern Development Program (IDP) 2.0. On 3-5 April 2012, NCARB will implement the final phase of IDP 2.0. This phase will include new experience categories and areas, simplified experience settings, and an enhanced electronic system to report IDP experience. IDP 2.0 is the most significant update to the Intern Development Program (IDP) since its inception in the 1970s.

All interns currently participating in the IDP will have their experience rolled over to IDP 2.0 when the current reporting system shuts down at noon EDT 3 April 2012. On 5 April 2012, the final phase of IDP 2.0 launches, along with a new reporting system. Using the available rollover tools and resources will help interns prepare for and understand how their individual circumstances may be affected by the rollover. “The IDP is an intern’s roadmap to obtaining the knowledge and skills necessary to practice architecture independently. It is in interns’ best interest to proactively understand their progress in the program and how to move forward,” said Harry M. Falconer Jr., AIA, NCARB, Director, Intern Development Program.

FORMER EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR L. WAYNE TUNE OF THE KENTUCKY BOARD OF REGISTRATION AND EXAMINATION OF ARCHITECTS IS RECOGNIZED AND HONORED FOR HIS SERVICE TO KENTUCKY'S PUBLIC AND ITS' ARCHITECTS

L. Wayne Tune was honored by the Board for his service as the Board's second Executive Director, a position he held from his appointment on April 22, 1974, to start work effective that July 1st until his retirement June 30th, 1997. Mr. Tune was originally licensed as an architect in Kentucky on April 14, 1953. He subsequently received his NCARB Certificate on August 30th, 1967. On behalf of the Board, President George Collignon presented

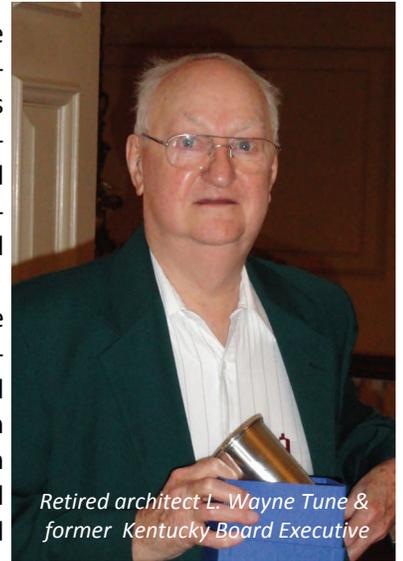

Board President George Collignon presenting Former Executive Director L. Wayne Tune a julep cup

Mr. Tune a julep cup expressing appreciation for his service to the public and profession.

Mr. Tune took over as Director for the retiring Julian Oberwarth, KY's first director, in 1974 and moved the board office from Mr. Oberwarth's office in Frankfort to his office on Young Drive in Lexington. It was at this time the Board also employed Eleanor Tune as Board Secretary. Upon retirement from an active architectural practice and closing his office, Mr. Tune then moved the Board office to his Lexington residence. It was during this period in 1980 that Mrs. Tune called on her son, David, an information technology employee of Ashland Inc., to assist in the transition of office equipment from a typewriter to a computer. For thirty years David assisted the Board with his generous support, technical skills and computer know-how without compensation. Upon the untimely passing of Eleanor Tune in 1994, Wayne then asked Deborah Tune, his daughter-in-law (and David's wife), to assist him through the upcoming renewal period for architects that year. Debbie agreed to help for two weeks. That was over seventeen years ago. It was early 1995 Debbie "leaned on" her husband to develop a computerized database for registrant records. As mentioned, Wayne retired as Executive Director in 1997, but David continued to volunteer his support and Debbie continued working full-time in the board office. Four members of the Tune family have contributed to the continued success and development of the Kentucky Board over a period of almost 42 years. We forgot to mention that Wayne Tune also served on the Board when appointed June 1st, 1970. Now do the math.

Eleanor Tune

DAVID W. TUNE IS RECOGNIZED AND HONORED FOR HIS GENEROUS SUPPORT AND TECHNOLOGICAL SUPPORT TO THE BOARD OF ARCHITECTS FROM 1980 THROUGH MOST OF 2010.

For thirty years, the Board, with David's computer technological knowledge and experience, was able to go from paper ledgers used for renewal record keeping and typewriter created correspondence to computer generated word processing and accounting to ultimately a multiple user robust renewal system and perpetual record system after many PC and software upgrades. The development of the board's database system, specifically addressing its' needs and requirements was accomplished and updated by David pro bono for the Board. Finally, in 2010, the responsibility for developing and maintaining the Board's database support was assigned to others, and David was given his free time back. Without his support during those thirty years, our system today would not be what it is and would have required a lot of work to catch up with current technologies.

OFFICE AND FIRM NAMES

Please also review the portion of our law pertaining to office and firm names. This is specified in our law only to insure the public is not misled into believing someone without a license here can practice Architecture.

201 KAR 19:100, Section 2. Office and Firm Names.

(1) Title blocks and firm names used in connection with the practice of architecture in this state shall not be misleading nor infer that unlicensed persons are architects, and only those registered to practice in Kentucky shall be so designated as architects.

(2) A firm name may be used without all members being registered if those architects who are licensed in Kentucky have the title "architect" applied only to them in subheadings or subtitles in defining the practice of the firm. Examples:

(a) SMITH, JONES, MILLER & MOORE

Albert Smith, Architect

(Where Smith and Jones are both architects in their own state but only Albert Smith is licensed in Kentucky and is fully responsible for work in this state); or

(b) SMITH, JONES, MILLER & MOORE, Inc.

Architects and Engineers

Albert Smith, Architect Carl Miller, Mech. Engr.

Robert Jones, Architect John Moore, Struct. Engr.

(Where all are licensed in Kentucky in the professions indicated); or

(c) STATEWIDE STUDIOS, Inc.

Roy Jones, Architect John Davis, Mech. Engr.

Carl Smith, Architect Alan Moore, Manager

(Where Jones and Smith are both licensed in Kentucky and the firm has other members they wish to include in their office title).

Sample forms of the prescribed seal are incorporated by reference and may be obtained from the Kentucky Board of Architects, 163 W. Short Street, Suite 555, Lexington, KY 40507, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Samples may also be viewed on our website at www.boa.ky.gov under the Kentucky Administrative Regulations, Chapter 19 (201 KAR 19:100).

WHO DID YOU WORK FOR? WHAT DID YOU DO?

By David E. Heyne

Recently, there have been an increasing number of inquiries submitted to the state Board of Architects regarding information contained in firm portfolios and staff resumes. It is always a difficult task to keep records clear and complete during the preparation of a proposal where "cut and paste" opportunities abound. In many instances, the professional whose resume is included in a proposal does not even know or review what has been submitted to a client.

Common errors found in architects' proposals:

- Not noting "under prior affiliation" or naming the firm who was responsible for a project in the individual's resume.
- Not providing a work history for the employee so that the reader will easily recognize that experience shown may be as a representative of another firm.
- Over-emphasizing experience on a project.
- Claiming responsibility for work not completed.
- Editing out language that clearly states the proper scope of experience, leaving only the project name and location.

With databases so easy to modify and edit on the fly in the face of a deadline it is easy to understand how these unintentional errors are made. Marketing directors, clerical staff or project managers are not always aware of the relevant experience of the entire team. The intent of marketing material should be to provide a potential client with accurate information regarding our experience so that our firm will be considered for a project. It should not be to stretch our experience by leaving out critical data or relationships. Most projects require a team of people, many playing significant roles in the project such as the execution of the program, site selection, building design, coordination of disciplines, preparation of construction documents, or construction contract administration. Each phase is important and requires special training and skills.

The Board recommends that architects and staff members preparing marketing materials for architectural proposals be familiar with the applicable Kentucky Administrative Regulations regarding Fraudulent or Dishonest Practice.

21 KAR 19:095, Section 4, (4) Willfully misleading or defrauding a person employing him as an architect.

Once in a while an experience rises out of the shadows of discord and difficulty to bolster faltering beliefs in the ability of men to cooperate unselfishly in attaining solutions to common problems

WHEN YOU RENEW

Be sure to check that all of the information in our system for you is correct. This includes both your home and business addresses, your preferred correspondence address, telephone numbers, preferred email address, and your firm's name. Only if you are self-employed or currently unemployed are you permitted to list your name-architect (e.g. John Doe - Architect). Please verify that all entries are complete, accurate and correctly spelled. Failure to verify your information could result in failed delivery of either U.S. Mail or emails to you and a possible administrative fee in accordance with 201 KAR 19:085, Section 2(10).

The Board's official name was changed from Kentucky Board of Examiners and Registration of Architects to simply Kentucky Board of Architects in 2002.

YOU ♥ ARCHITECTURE IT'S YOUR FUTURE

(Learn more.)

Setting a Future Course for Architecture

This April, the National Council of Architectural Registration Boards (NCARB) has invited more than 80,000 architects, interns, and educators to participate in the 2012 NCARB Practice Analysis of Architecture Survey. "It is more than just data collection; it is about the future of the profession," said NCARB CEO Michael J. Armstrong. "A carefully conceived and designed survey will maximize potential results, provide valuable insight into the profession, and lay the strongest foundation for education, experience, examination, and continuing education."

"NCARB uses the data collected from the Practice Analysis Survey to identify the tasks and knowledge/skills necessary for the independent practice of architecture," said Vice President, Programs Stephen Nutt, AIA, NCARB, CAE. "The data will help drive the Architect Registration Examination® (ARE®), inform the Intern Development Program (IDP), and guide our response to the 2013 National Architectural Accrediting Board (NAAB) Accreditation Review Conference (ARC). The results will also be used to inform the Council's continuing education policies."

The 2012 Practice Analysis Survey was developed through the collaborative effort of NCARB and its collateral organizations—the American Institute of Architects (AIA), the American Institute of Architecture Students (AIAS), the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture (ACSA), and the National Architectural Accrediting Board (NAAB). NCARB has historically conducted an analysis of the profession every five to seven years.

The success of the Practice Analysis and its implementation into key programs is dependent upon the support of the profession. The number of architects, interns, and educators that complete the survey directly impacts and improves the quality of the decisions made—a rare example in architecture where more is better. Participating in the Practice Analysis Survey is an important way to share expertise and give back to the profession. NCARB strongly encourages those who receive the electronic survey in April to respond. The greater the number of complete responses, the more reliable the data and the more informative the results.

NCIDQ references interior designers as having "an artist's aesthetic sensibility, an engineer's attention to detail and code compliance and a business executive's focus on the bottom line. Many people use the terms "interior designer" and "interior decorator" interchangeably, but these professions differ in critical ways. Interior design is the art and science of understanding people's behavior to create functional spaces within a building. Decoration is the furnishing or adorning of a space with fashionable or beautiful things. In short, interior designers may decorate, but decorators do not design." Kentucky's Certified Interior Designers are interior designers who have been educated, trained and tested to meet the National Council of Interior Design Qualifications (NCIDQ) to provide the highest standard of knowledge and expertise in creating interior spaces that protect health, safety and welfare for the public. Kentucky's CIDs are regulated and governed by applicable provisions of the Kentucky Revised Statutes, Chapter 323 and Title 201 of Kentucky's Administrative Regulations, Chapter 19.
